

Highlights

- Leakage-aware benchmark for gridded urban change from WorldPop and VIIRS
- GroupSplit reveals optimistic bias from row-wise spatial leakage
- Δ WorldPop is more predictable than differenced VIIRS nighttime lights
- Lightweight RMSE-anchored calibration improves tail reliability
- Two-expert MoE underperforms under realistic spatial transfer